At the Top of the Heap

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV'S SEIZure of full control in the Soviet thrusting aside the rather pathetic figurehead provided by Nikolai Bulganin, has completed the almost inevitable course of politics under an authoritarian system of Abandoned are the eulogies of the collective government which was used to fill the temporary vacuum created by Josef Stalin's death. Abandoned, too, are the diatribes against the cult of personality, by which Mr. Khrushchev sought to popularize himself in the immediate post-Stalin era.

Today, Mr. Khrushchev holds the secretaryship of the Communist Party, which gives him complete authority over that powerful organization and over the one-party Government; and he holds the premiership, which gives him the constitutional leadership of the country. He thus equals Josef Stalin in offices held and in personal power. Will he equal him in the aggressiveness of his international policies?

While the pyramidal form authoritarian government tends to throw a strong successor to the top as soon as his predecessor removed, an empty throne usually precipitates a ruthless struggle for power. As of now, Mr. Khrushchev has shown himself the most pro-ficient in this struggle. In quick succession those who offered, or might offer, opposition were removed. Friend and foe alike found the ground cut from beneath them as Nikita planned and executed his campaign to become sole leader of Russia and its twentieth-century

Beria, the secret policeman, went to his death in a dungeon at an early date. Soon to follow him, into obscurity rather than the grave, were Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich, Zhukov, even a second-ranker like Shepilov, whose foreign ministry career barely outlasted his tete-atete with Nasser. Bulganin, little more than a gentlemanly travelling companion and signer of international correspondence, is the latest to be shelved. Czar Nikita reigns.

The primary interest of the West, of course, is in what policies and programs he will pursue, now that the brakes appear to have been removed, now that he faces no restraint by critics at home.

Does he want peace, as he so often has asserted? Does he want merely time to build Soviet power to crushing size? Will he seek an accommodation with the West; or does his sneer at Western diplomats -"We will bury you"-reflect his true feelings and intentions?

The personality of Mr. Khrush-chev, as described by those who have had dealings with him, gives little comfort. He is known as a gambler, a reckless man who will take chances to win, a man who will shoot for high stakes with little regard for immediate cost.

This man now has at his command the largest army in the world, a formidable undersea navy, a huge air force. At his fingertips he has an unknown number of short-range and long-range rocket missiles, armed with atomic warheads.

These are ominous facts. The ascendancy of Nikita Khrushchev is bad news for the West. No parallel to dictator Khrush-chev comes readily to mind. He bears no resemblance to the zealot Lenin or the butcher Stalin. Within his stolid, apparently impenetrable peasant shell he exercises a quick and clever mind. His road to power has been a dangerous one. Only a very tough and ruthless man could have travelled it successfully, beating off competition on the way.

with these stern qualities Khrushchev exhibits other lighter aspects which seem equally to be an innate part of his character. He slaps of foreign newsmen or diplomats—like a campaigning politician, announces state policy in the boisterous atmosphere of cocktail parties, tosses a humorous quip or shakes a threatening fist with equal facility, and through it all presents a thoroughly indoctrinated Marxist viewpoint-with such changes as he think expedient—to the world. The obvious question, of course, is: Can he stay up on the pinnacle he has attained? It is an impossible one to answer with any exactitude. The defeated and exiled candidates, as individuals, appear to offer little immediate threat. But somewhere, inevitably, there must be a Russian private with a field marshal's baton in his knapsack; somewhere there must be a man heretofore ignored who nurses, along with the tough personal qualities of a dictator, the ambition someday to utilize them. Tomorrow or years from now, his

Enemy or Servant?

THE RECENT SUCCESSFUL explosion of a small atomic bomb inside a Nevada mountain opens the prospect of a whole new phase of atomic experimentation and use.

The new technique provides at once an answer to the problem of fall-out in atomic tests, since the products of the explosion are contained within the ground. But it offers much more than technical

As a means of reducing or removing immense tonnages of rock quickly and relatively cheaply, of providing large quantities of radioactive materials for industrial and other use, of generating vast supplies of heat which could be tapped to pro-vide steam—the contained explosion offers exciting avenues of study.

It also poses problems. At present the chief method of detecting atomic bomb explosions in foreign territory to encourage the native to help himself.

A considerable number of natives already find profitable employment in logging, farming and fishing. But the employment opportunities open to the people as a whole have been restricted largely by a lack of preparation by Indians for particular vocations. If, in the course of the conference, the door to business and commercial activity for them can be opened wider, the conference will have more than justified itself.

Certainly it should add to the confidence of the natives when they enter competitive fields.

is by measuring the radioactive fallout in the atmosphere. If a country resorts to contained explosions in furthering its atomic armaments it will be much more difficult to detect such activities. It will be much more difficult to ensure enforcement of agreements to restrict or ban atomic arms development.

As in all atomic considerations. only intelligence and understanding can ensure that this new technique be used to man's advantage rather than to his detriment. When harbors can be deepened, obstacles such as Ripple Rock removed, irrigation plans and other large-scale improvements effected through the controlled use of nuclear explosive power, then we shall have harnessed for our good the greatest force known. But with our ability to move mountains will have to go faith capable of a similar phenomenon.

MARKING BALLOTS

By B. A. TOBIN

It's Worth a Proper Place

ITS odd, when you think of it, what a hit-or-miss, makeshift sort of business our elections are. For observances far less important we deck ourselves and our surroundings in appropriate finery. A civic holiday finds flags in the streets and on public buildings. Pub-lic anniversaries of a date which might not carry any real import-ance are often kept with lavish display. Our legislative deliberations buildings which represent the best in architectural taste and the most in cost-not always synonymous -that we can produce, or in older struc-tures hallowed by historical connotation,

Even for much lesser proceedings— stage productions or film showings—we provide gilded palaces of magnificence. Concert halls can usually boast of pur-poseful utility even if they are deficient in beauty or attractiveness

It's a poor gathering place for public ecasions which cannot lay claim to at least one or two items in its favor. And all are available through planning and design. They are built for a special pur-pose and they are used to fulfill it.

Different Story

But when it comes to voting in elecons-perhaps the most important facet of our whole civilization and culture since so many of our other benefits depend on the freedom implied, in the free, secret ballot for government representatives-when it comes to this vital public function, what do we find?

Our casting of ballots—the glorious culmination of many centuries of struggle and evolution, the jealously prized jewel of our national and comm performed in some ramshackle shed, some hastily converted hall obviously designed for other purposes, some private premises grudgingly and incongruously marked off for temporary employment, or in some dark corner of a school hallranks" to a well-deserved position of way.

Grim Surroundings

Any Greater Victorian can vouch for the truth of these assertions. Anyone who has voted in this area in city, muni-cipal, provincial or federal elections over the past few years can recall visits to one-car garages, murky private base-ments, freezing sheds, emptily echoing halls where the scrutineers were huddled forlornly in a corner, lost in the vast

Are such quarters a proper setting the greatest of all democratic enomena?

Ordinarily, the appointments match the accommodation. The tables are rickety, the chairs on their last legs. The curtains which provide secrecy for the balloting are frequently makeshift or torn. Where four way screened stands are provided for marking ballots, they are usually shaky, cracked, battered and seemingly in danger of collapsing. The pencils, whose use is obligatory, are enerally mere blunt stubs. We provide better facilities for rummage sales than we do for many of our polling booths.

Surely so important a process as electing our governments deserves an adequate environment, something better than the run-of-the-mill premises which are so obviously temporary,

Do not mistake me—they do the job. So could a parliament meeting in a barn; so could a city council sitting on a gar-bage wharf. But legislatures and councils rightly receive better treatment.

There is a degree of dignity and impressiveness that is their just due. These same attributes should be accorded blic act of electing such bodies.

Will Canadian communities ever provide special quarters, small though they might be, designed expressly for the act of voting? Will the day ever dawn when be pointed out as "The Polling Building, sacred to the casting of ballots to elect governments at any level, and serving between elections as a marker or shrine, even a tiny museum, dedicated to pre-serving the tenets of our democracy?

With Significance

We erect at some expense memorials to the fallen in our wars. Statuary and plaques have their place. But what better monument to warriors who died for free dom could be envisioned than a perma-nent neighborhood structure to house the political fruits of their sacrifice?

Of brick or enduring stone, and expressing the best in our architectural abilities, the Polling Buildings would be landmarks, constant reminders to all passersby that our freedoms are built-into our communities and into our lives in permanence and concrete stability

They could become the centre certain school exercises on appropriate occasions, so that growing children could know that enfranchisement is more than stumbling into someone's cellar to scribble on a slip of paper. So could future citizens look forward to the day when they would be privileged to enter, with pride and dignity, into that special building and there perform their duty and exercise their right.

BASIC INDUSTRY

we, as farmers, must never forget, is that, as producers of the bread of life in its broadest sense, we form the very foundation of the great and complex structure of civilization that man has built up. We must be diffident about pointing out this elementary truth again and again, in order to ensure that farming achieves and maintains its proper recognition—economically and in every other way—in the eyes of the rest of the community.

Vote With Heads

Everyone contributes to history. Not the least of these is the voter. It is a proud privilege and it is imperative to use one's franchise. Otherwise ones' citi-zenship is betrayed.

Following serious reflection based upon a lively interest, there arrives that objective feeling and conviction as to the most suitable choice towards the coun-try's destiny. Experience and an inner core of listening give the answer.

Canada today needs a dedicated leader, one who, knowing his course, will with out thought of hindrance pursue it towards international and Canada's good. towards international and Canada's go K. WORTHINGTON-LAKE.

Natives' Franchise

How long do we native Indians have to wait before we get the federal vote? There is something radically wrong when aliens can come to this country of ours and get the vote and enjoy privileges that we are deprived of in our own native land. We pay income tax to the federal government and sales tax to the provincial government, and our young men are conscripted into the armed forces in time of war. Why the discrimination against our people?

NATIVE SON. (Editor's Note: An Indian may vote if he takes formal action to become enfranchised, waives tax exemption or is a war veteran.)

Tight Money, CBC, Senate

I am no politician, and it never makes much difference to me which party is in. But I like the truth, and am wondering who the head of the Bank of Canada thinks he is fooling, when he says there was no tight money policy?

It was common knowledge at the time, and was announced by both the government and the banks at large. While I have had no desire to borrow money, I know of people who tried to get housing loans, and other loans, and could not do so. I only hope whatever party gets in they will do something about getting rid of the CBC, or make it pay its own About one person in ten ever listens to it and the country has to pay for it

Also it is time we were rid of the Senate. It is not necessary to have two parts to our government, and costs a lot of extra money. It belongs to the Dark Ages. Most of the members are nice Ages. people, but have money enough, and do not need a job.

Those Low-Cost Houses

CCF'ers are making all the political hay they can over their 200,000 low cost houses per year. They may be low cost now, but if workers borrowed money to buy them, and if a depression came with a fall in prices, they would be trying to make payments on houses that were higher than all others in price.

If they missed payments, unpaid in terest would increase the principal; as money lenders won't countenance can-

I cannot allow the letter which appeared in a recent edition, over the signature "Former Teacher," to go un-answered. I wonder why "former!" Could it be that the writer is one of the legion who used an honorable profession merely as a stepping stone to another which offered a more lucrative return?

Good Band, But

All the qualities of this magnificent band, partly enumerated here, surely, would have been sufficient to ample entertainment, without the addi-tional strain presented by a boys choir, grossly exalted as having an enviable record of performing for the last seven years without ever receiving, in all that time, a bad report! The Folks

I NEVER use it, but I'm very fond of that Canadian expression, "The Folks." I'm so fond of it that I want to put down more less what it means to me

This is the general picture: The Folks are oldish, well on in their sixties. He's a bit leathery round the neck, and you can see that, for years, he's been an outdoor man. His hands are those of a manual worker. She's quite plump. But, though her bust is big, and her hips are not what you'd call "slinkly," her ankles and feet are very, very

The Folks, I think, are Protestants, never Roman Catholics. They tend to be United Church rather than Anglican.

They came out from England in about 1920, and they farmed somewhere on the prairies. For the first six months the wife was very homesick, because the journey seemed immense in those days, and she could see little chance of ever going "home, even for a visit. * *

In those first days, too, they looked down a little on the "foreigners" as they called the other immigrants of non-British origin. Gradually, however, they began to complete hend the Canadian mosaic, and, about years ago, they suddenly became aware of Canadians as a nation, and grew consciously proud of the racial mixture that's resulted in what we call the Canadain breed.

Four children were born to the Folks. They grew up in simple agricultural com-munity with the little red schoolhouse, lunches in lardpails, and neighborhood dances in the Community Hall which they'd all helped to build with volunteer labor. Somehow, the Folks pulled through the Depression. They still say, that they don't quite know how they did it. But they did survive, though it left a definite mark on their thinking, and on that of their now middle-aged children.

Of the children, the two oldest who were girls, became school teachers. The older boy stayed with the farm and took it over when his father retired. The younger boy was killed overseas in the Second World War. On his leaves in Britain, he visited some of the places his parents had so often talked about. He looked up many of the relatives, and being a decent kid, he wrote quite good descriptive letters to his parents because he knew it would give them pleasure.

The Folks came down to the Coast some ears ago. (You may have met them on the Island, or at White Rock maybe, or in one of the towns in the Fraser Valley.)

They enjoy flowers, and they have a vegetable garden that grows smaller every year because "Dad and I really can't tackle quite what we used to." But Mum makes pickles and jams, still. ("I like to have something to give the children to take home. They're earning far more than Dad and I ever did, but they seem to have such a hard time getting by. Sometimes, I do wonder this high standard of living, don't

Their children call them "the Folks." It's a term of endearment.

I could write about the Folks for hours about their interest when they hear that another old prairie neighbor has moved to the coast, about the parcels they do up at Christmas time, about the photagraphs on their mantelpiece. ("The middle one is our

Fish 'n Chip Crusade

LONDON-Quite a battle going on up at Eton over fish and chips.

Eton (pop: 4.860) takes very seriously the fact that it is the home of the famous ol, and when a gentleman by the name of Dennis White applied to-set up a fish and chip shop on the High St. there was trouble.

The local council ap-proved White's application and within hours they received a petition signed by 63 shopkeepers and safe-guarders of the tone of the town. A fish and chip shop in Eton-are you out your minds! That was the mood of the petition. That put the local council on rather a spot, because they have no wer to revoke a permit they've granted. they asked the county council to quash White's fish and chip shop. This the higher authority did, on condition that Eton paid him any compensation he might claim.

White countered by producing a petition to buy fish and chips. He said that in the meantime he'd set up a cafe in nearby Wembley, but he wasn't giving up the fight.

"Eton needs a fish and chip shop and I'm going to do my best to get it for them," he

Now, at the end, Jesus again pulled Himself up to the top of His cross. Again He spoke. "Father, He cried, into your hands I commit My spirit!"

One of the soldiers came around to the front of the cross to take another look. Then he went back and lay down on the rock.

From Jesus' lungs came a final cry: "It is finished!" The body sagged on the cross. Jesus willed Himself to die. A sound went-through the air as though a herd of animals had stampeded under-ground. A fresh breeze ex-pelled its brief breath on the

Temple Veil Splits

The earth trembled and a small crack fissured the earth from the west toward the east and split the big rock of execution and went across the road and through the gate of Jerusalem and across the town and through the temple, and it split the big inner veil of the temple from the top to the bottom and went on east and rocked the big wall and split the tombs in the cemetery outside the walls and shook the Cedron and went on to the Dead Sea, leaving fissures in the earth, the rocks and across the mountains.

(The fissure in the earth must have seemed a "natural" disturbance to the general populace, which had apparently experienced earthquakes before this time. The rending of the temple veil would not have been revealed to the people).

Centurion Awed

Abenadar and some of the soldiers jumped to their feet in alarm. They came to the front of the cross and looked at Him and at the darkened aky and the crack across the big rock. The centurion bowed his head. "Assuredly," he said to the others, "this Man was the Son of God."

He was troubled, and he urned to look at the friends of Jesus-perhaps to ask a question — but he saw that they had moved the Mother of the Messiah back toward the crossroads near the gate.

Then the centurion noticed a man-one who was attired as a wealthy person—walk-ing rapidly toward the city gate. Abenadar did not know the man, but he had seen him in the last hour standing apart from the others, watching the face of Jesus obvious compassion. This was Joseph of Arimathea.

Removal Asked

The centurion also saw that two of Pilate's guards were now conversing with the high priests. He had only begun to wonder at their presence, across the rock to tell him that the high priests had sent word to Pilate that if the crucified were still on the trees at sundown, all of Gol-gotha would be defiled, and no Jew could set foot on it henceforth.

Pilate, eager to be done with this matter of Jesus, had ord-ered two guards back to Gol-gatha and there to apply the

It required a degree of courage, indeed gallantry, to do what Joseph of Arimathea did that afternoon. He hur-ried to Antonia and requested an audience of Pontius Pilate. It was granted, and Joseph asked for permission to bury Jesus of Nazareth at once.

Joseph Embarrassed

This was an embarrassing interview for Joseph. In ask-ing for the body for burial, he was making known to the Procurator that he, a member of the Great Sanhedrin, the head of the well-known Sadducean family, was a secret Disciple of Jesus.

Joseph waited. Word came back that the Man Jesus had died first, just prior to the work of the guard with the plank. Pilate shrugged. He bowed pleasantly and gave permission for Joseph to take the body down, in conformity with Jewish custom, and to bury the body before the onset of the Sabbath.

The Hebrew senator thanked him and hurried out into the streets of Jerusalem. There, by accident, he met Nicodemus, the Pharisee who had once sought Jesus in the dead of night, and Joseph said that he had just built a sepulchre in the garden at Golgotha and was about to inter the body of Jesus there.

Honorable Burial

Nicodemus did not hesitate. He said that he too had been strangely moved by the words and deeds of this Man, and he wanted to assist in the funeral arrangements to see that Jesus was buried as an honorable Man.

It is ironic that when Jesus died His burial would be arranged not by the stalwart Peter nor the beloved John nor any of the men who had been close to Him, but by a Sadducee, a Pharisee, and a

Agreement Ready

DUNCAN - Copies of the agreement to the signed with the federal agriculture depart-ment for development of the annual three-day Cowichan Ex-hibition have been received by Archie Stevenson, president of the exhibition board.

The agreement calls for Ottawa to pay half the construction cost in moving the annual from the agricultural grounds to the new grounds adjacent to Pioneer Park on James Street.

$100,000 FROM OTTAWA

Plans for the first phase of the proposed development were submitted to Ottawa last month, and will involve an expenditure of $57,500.

It is expected that a total of $100,000 will be made available by Ottawa to develop the new site, with separate agreements to be made for each phase.

Ike Urged To Exempt Canada Oil

WASHINGTON (CP)-Sena tor Edmund J. Thye, a Minne-sota Republican, has asked President Elsenhower to exempt Canadian oil imports from United States restrictions.

Canada has long been a sup-plier of oil to the midwest border states as well as Washing-ton and Oregon in the Pacific northwest. Canadian exports were reduced by last year's voluntary American program to limit imports by oil companies into District 5, which covers the U.S. west of the Rockies, to a total of 220,100 barrels of crude oil a day.

Then President Eisenhower ordered Thursday that crude imports into the U.S. in the area of the country east of the Rockies, be reduced.

In a letter sent to the presi-dent Friday, Thye said Cana-dian imports should be ex-empted from present restrictions because they are "minute."

The dropping of the restrictions on imports, he declared, also would create better feelings in Canada, which has expressed displeasure at the oil restrictions as well as limitations on their agriculture ex-

Thye, in his proposal to the president, declared he realized that oil imports were a "continuing" problem.

But he suggested two alternatives which he said would help U.S. companies supplying oil to their consumers and at the same time help Canadian exporters. These were:

1. Exempt all Canadian imports of crude oil, or

2. Exempt all Canadian crude

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Reductions in the prices of aluminum made products appeared today to be likely following an unexpected two-cents-a-pound cut in the cost of primary aluminum. The three biggest aluminum producers—Alcoa, Reynolds and Kaiser—announced Friday that they will cut their prices for pig aluminum to 24 cents a pound April 1.

An Alcoa spokesman said it would take some time to translate the price reduction of the primary metal into terms of fabricated products.

Alcoa, making its first price reduction since 1942, said it acted to meet competition. Reynolds and Kaiser quickly followed suit.

New Super Dredge At Work Here Soon

Dredging facilities in Brit-ish Columbia waters will-take a major step forward within the next 6-8 weeks, when the largest self-con-tained suction dredge in the province is put into opera-tion.

The new equipment for B.C., pictured a bove, is Dredge No. 305, the King Edward, formerly owned and operated by the federal government—from whom it was recently purchased by the Tide Bay Dredging Co. Ltd.

According to an announcement by Tide Bay Co. officials, the dredge is at present being completely modernized and converted for diesel drive and electric control.

B.C.'s super dredge will have a daily capacity of 20,000 cubic yards per day. Over 200 feet in over all length, it is fitted with a 20-inch sand pump—together with dieseland electric drives totalling 2,500 horsepower.

The "ladder" of the dredge is being lengthened to 70 feet, which will enable the equipment to work efficiently to a depth of approximately 50 feet.

"This additional dredging capacity will make a tremendous difference to the speed of work as many construction and industrial development projects in the B.C. area," said Paul Core, president of the Tide Bay Dredging Company. Meanwhile, Mr. Coté and Mr. Herbert Fritz, vice-presidents-of-the associated Tide Co. (B.C.) Ltd, and The Bay Co. (B.C.) Ltd, have revealed that plans are already being made for the building of a 30-inch dredge, which will incorporate the most modern design features now in use anywhere in the world.

Engineering studies for this second super-dredge are now being carried out.

Well, George, I certainly am proud of you, I mean I really am, you did such a wonderful job cleaning out the fireplace and I'm sorry for all the nasty things I've been saying to you week after week after week trying to get you to do it...,

... of course, George, I KNOW you didn't want a house with a fireplace anyway and I KNOW you hate cleaning out the fireplace, that's whx I'm so PROUD of you and the WONDERFUL job you did even scrubbing the brickwork the woodbox out of the living room and down those narrow stairs to the basement, but you said yourself, George, there'll be no more need for the fireplace until next fall and by then we'll all be dead from the atom bomb, you hope, that's what you said, wasn't it, George? ... what's the matter George? Aren't you feeling well? You look all sort of funny, George? ... oh, did I flick my cigaret ashes in the fireplace? I'm so sorry, George, I won't do it again, it's just that I'm so used to having the fireplace all cluttered up with ashes and bits of paper and stuff and things, for so many weeks, when you didn't clean it, that . clean it, that all right, George, all RIGHT, I'll DROP the subject but you don't need to tell me to STOW it, it's just that I was trying to THANK you for cleaning out the fireplace after all these weeks and I know how much you HATE to do it and you didn't WANT a house with a fireplace so I'm just TRULY grateful, that's all, and you don't have to do a supplementary in the fireplace all supplementary in the fireplace all supplementary. THING to the fireplace all summer long I won't even put

The ex-mayoress stepped up the pace for her political rivals by getting out on the street at 4 a.m. to mingle with several hundred charwomen and government cleaners who yawn their way to work in government build-ings at that cheerless hour.

Her Conservative fellowcandidates in the district intimated fairly politely to her that she wasn't welcome to their ranks by omitting all mention of her from their joint party advertising.

But Miss Whitton countered by staging a mammoth public reception in the clos-ing hours of the campaign and having Prime Minister John Diefenbaker himself attend as her principal guest. Her chances of winning the West Ottawa seat are rated as something better than 50-50. Her opponent is a vet-eran Liberal parliamentarian, George McIlraith, who up until the time the ex-mayoress took him on, was rated as an unbeatable House of Commons fixture

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

Hard-luck Joe ruffed the third diamond lead and noted casually that East discarded a spade. Joe took two rounds of trumps, cashed his ace of clubs and led a second club toward dummy. West played the queen, Joe played the king, ruffed the last diamond, and then he last diamond, and then led his last club.
East grabbed the jack and led a spade and Joe was down one trick.
"Nice play," said Joe.
"I hoped you would hold both the queen and jack for your double in which case the elimination play was sure to work."

would be autor other discard would either be a club or a third spade. Should West discard three spades Joe would simply drop his king with the ace. Should West discard two spades and a club, Joe would take the ace and king of clubs and lead dummy's fourth diamond, whereupon West would have to lead a spade to Joe.

This line of play would collapse if East showed up with the king of spades but that was most unlikely. West had doubled and East had stayed out of the 4-9148.

That's the day they are going to set off the charge that will blast off the two tips of this menace to navigation with some 2,700,000 pounds of high explosives.

The CBC announces that the historic event will be covered by radio and TV, starting at 8.45 in the morning.

A special microwave net-work across 140 miles of Phone 2-5873 Vancouver Island will transmit the explosion to Vancouver where it will be telecast to eastern Canadian viewers via a U.S. microwave network.

THE BLAST is due to be set off at 9.31. If bad weather causes a delay in the firing, the next favorable time will be at 10.31 on Sunday, then at 11.01 a.m. Monday.

According to the CBC's own paper on the event, nobody really knows what effects can be expected from the blast. However, it is expected that the CBC Master Control unit will be lifted one-tenth of an inch (believed comparable to an earthquake of force three) so all delicate electronic instruments have been cushioned on at east three inches of rubber. Some experts say the blast will shoot rock and water for 300 feet up into the air; others say 1,000 feet.

TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1958

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)-There is a possibility of gaining greater prestige and abundance in connection with any endeavors of a business, social or spiritual nature. P.M. finish household chores especially cleaning, washing, all sanitary measures.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)-Today an oppor tunity is present to learn of some novel way in which to let the inner personality come forth that will manifest itself in more creative thinking and performing. Adopt it quickly and succeed. «

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—While your lagging spirits may have you feeling downhearted today, there are fine chances all around you which will enable you to start building on relatively nothing to a sure peak. Cheer up and dig!

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)-Refrain from plodding along in your usual fashion now. Dress up and go where progressive persons are succeeding. You can then express yourself properly and know that your tastes and abilities are great. Live!

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)-Here is the right day to go over your books. Is your income higher than your expenditures, and is your budgeting good. Think big, but wisely, and you can then realize true abundance and real success.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)-Some enterprise that you personally have thought about today has a wonder-ful opportunity for realization. Dress impeccably, then see those persons who can assist you with it materially and morally. Be precise-

-LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) - By quietly sitting and thinking out your future plans at odd moments today, this will prove very fruitful soon. Also, make sure you help a person that is in unfortunate circumstances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)-A clever, under standing pal today gives you real assistance at right, psychological time. See that you are more co-operative, which is possible if you consider other party's side of things. Be practical. SAGITTABIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)-Think in larger terms today. Be sure to contact that very suc cessful person who can help you to achieve greater success, whether at your vocation, or with your social success, whether at your vocation, or with joinife. Be wide awake and many doors will open like CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)-Peruse newspaper or other written matter thoroughly to gain the data which has eluded you until now and to know just how and where it can be applied mast profitably. You then make fine progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Very frequently you are so immersed in assisting others with their difficult affairs that you sometimes do not take time to your own up properly. Better get in touch with real authorities for fastest results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)-Be certain indulge in much conversation with vital persons today even those who are not exactly friends, since much that is important will be gleaned from them, re partners and so forth. Cement better relations and act quickly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TUESDAY

The lovely child born Tuesday is one of those very fastidious types who will ever want everything in order around him or her and for whom washing around and behind the ears will be fun. Hence, your progeny should follow any of those polite professions that deal with sanitation, such as nursing, medicine, drugs, barbering, etc. The humanitarian is here, so give proper training suited to temperament.

OVER 200 FEET IN LENGTH, the former Federal Government dredge can work efficiently to a depth of 50 feet and has a capacity of 20,000 cubic yards per day.

New Super Dredge At Work Here Soon

Breiging facilities in British Columbia waters will take a major step forward within the next 6-8 weeks, when the largest self-contained suction dredge in the province is put into operation.

The new equipment for B.C., pictured a bove, is Dredge No, 305, the King Edward, formerly owned and operated by the federal government—from whom it was recently purchased, by the Tide Bay Dredging Co. Ltd.

According to an announcement by Tide Bay Co. officials, the dredge is at present being completely modernized and converted for diesel drive and electric control.

Modifications are also be-bow to improve its efficiency and allow for increased dredging capacity. The con-version work, now being car-ried out by Tide Bay engi-neers is progressing rapidly and the dredge is expected to be in operation by late April. 20,000 CUBIC YARDS DAILY

According to an announcement by Tide Bay Co. officials, the dredge is at present being completely modernized ind converted for diesel irive and electric control.

Modifications are also being made to the dredge's mately 50 feet.

"This additional dredging capacity will make a tremendous difference to the speed of work at many construction and industrial development projects in the B.C. area," said Paul Cote, president of the Tide Bay Dredging Company.

Meanwhile, Mr. Cote and Mr. Herbert Fritz, vice-presidents of the associated Tide Co. (B.C.) Ltd. and The Bay Co. (B.C.) Ltd., have revealed that plans are already being made for the building of a 30-inch dredge, which will incorpiate the most modern design features now in use anywhere in the world.

Engineering studies for this second super-dredge are now being carried out.

CANCER "CURE"? - Major eventual breakthroughs envisioned by scientists may lead to better understanding of the nature of cancer, and may open paths to drug cures and point the way to widespread prevention of cancer through immunization. So says Dr. Leroy E. Burney, U.S. surgeon general and head of the public health service. He cautions that the ultimate cure of cancer will not be found overnight.

By GORDON HOLMS

The year 1957 might well ualify as a year of averages for B.C. fishermen and farmers. This "average" is an income fax safeguard designed to protect these two groups during poor economic periods.

Both operate in risky fields where incomes can zoom or slump to virtually nothing.

Averaging is a method where this type of earner can elect to have his income balanced over a five-year period. By this
